COUNTY WINS 2 NACIO AWARDS OF EXCELLENCE

Montgomery County, Virginia • The Montgomery County Public Information Office has won two awards in the 2014 National Association of County Information Officers' (NACIO) Awards of Excellence competition.

The 2013 Annual Report won best of class for annual reports and the 2014 Broomin' and Bloomin' logo won a superior award for graphic design. There were more than 330 entries from counties in the national competition. One Best of Class winner was chosen in each of the nine categories.

"The awards competition continually showcases the best communications and public relations projects from public information professionals throughout the country," said NACIO President Todd McGee, Public Relations Director for the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners. "I know the judges had a difficult time in selecting the winners, and that is a testament to the great work that is being done to help citizens better understand what county governments do."

The awards will be presented July 13 during the annual NACIO Awards Reception, held during the National Association of Counties (NACo) Annual Conference in New Orleans, La.

The National Association of County Information Officers was formed in 1966 with the goal to bring together communications professionals who wanted to share information with other counties across the United States. For more information visit: www.nacio.org.
